The latest travel news and products ...

Guide and seek The Luxe is well-regarded among travellers for its in-depth info on Bali, Bangkok, Hong Kong and Hanoi. They're less respected for the words of The Guardian's "more than a little irritating". But the listings are up to the minute; twice yearly to keep pace with the market. The set of five retails online for $100, including postage and packing. Visit www.luxe.com.au

Dream on Of all the pictorial offerings out this Christmas, this is the most striking to come across Final Call's desk. Peter Hendrie's images of the South Pacific make you want to go there - now - and see for yourself the extraordinary body decorations of the Melpa women in Papua New Guinea, or the impossibly white sands of Champagne Beach in Espiritu Santo. If you can't afford a holiday this year, buy this book and dream. Pacific Journeys by Peter Hendrie, $69.95.

Think tank Unleash your inner warrior and get out of the house for a day, with a backyard Baghdad. During this backyard Baghdad, the place in the Hunter Valley, he in a Sarscen armoured vehicle the tank performs "true army" for an hour costs $199; for $1,000 you can be the beast yourself.
